1. In the Eisenhower Doctrine, President Eisenhower said that the United States would defend any country in the Middle East against an attack by any communist country. Congress approved this doctrine.

2. The Truman Doctrine provided approximately $400 million dollars to Greece and Turkey. Truman supported this idea because he did not want Turkey and Greece to become communist countries.

3. The Marshall Plan was the economic plan that would provide $12.5 billion dollars to foreign nations to prevent the spread of communism. The Soviet Union was trying to starve the people of West Germany by blocking all the roads into the country and force them to switch to communism. President Truman wanted to help West Germany and other western European nations remain democratic countries. The U.S. spent this money fly cargo planes into Berlin, the capital of West Germany, to feed the people and provide needed resources like coal for heat and medical supplies. The goal of the Marshall Plan, and especially the Berlin Airlift, was to force the leader of the Soviet Union, Joseph Stalin, to back off and allow West Germany to rebuild and someday thrive.

4. The Hungarian Uprising was the event that caused Britain and France to invade Egypt in 1956. In November 1956, Soviet Tanks rolled into Hungary and killed approximately 3,000 Hungarians. The Allied Countries wanted to help Hungary against the Soviet Union. The Allies did not want Hungary to become a communist country.

5. A Satellite Nation is when a country is dominated politically and economically by another nation. It serves as support to a mother country. Satellite nations also can provide extra security to the controlling nation, and by providing a buffer against invasion from an aggressive neighboring country.
